Dear Warren Casperson,

My business is installing gas appliances for consumers and home owners throughout the Vancouver area and lower mainland, hence I do a lot of driving with my fully loaded 1999 Ford E350 service van. The raised roof, appliances and all my equipment make for a heavy vehicle and my gas mileage wasn't impressive and since my previous experience with Enviro Save Metal Treatment was very positive to both wallet and vehicle I purchased the 899100 Powertrain Protection Kit for my van.

After treating my E350 it immediately began running smoother, improvement in performance and a minimum 11% fuel saving, The boost in gas mileage, performance and smoother shifting certainly convinced me that the treatment will also increase the life of my van. I know there will be less of a chance of any mechanical damage or costly repairs and I enjoy saving company time, money, and the headache of any breakdowns in the long run.

The Ford E350 owner's manual calls for oil changes every 5,000kms, however after treating I checked the oil and it was so clean my mechanic told me that I still didn't need a regular oil change yet. Oil doesn't wear out, it just gets contaminated and everyone I know that has used Enviro Save comments about how their oil stays cleaner longer. So now I do regular oil changes every 7,500kms and may increase that to 10,000kms after checking oil condition at 7500kms by having an oil sample analysis done.

Enviro Save is a great preventative maintenance product for my vehicles, economy, performance, longevity and it helps reduce global pollution in several ways. I just bought a Jeep and will be buying a kit for it very soon. Thanks for the savings!

Sincerely,
